June 2019

Dear Member,

A big month of showing in May with our Young Bird Selection Show, the Zone Selection Show and the ANBC show now behind us. Congratulations must go to the O'Callaghan Family for winning Grand Champion of Show with a Dominate Pied and to Ian Schneider for winning Opposite Sex of show with his Spangle Double Factor hen at our Young Bird Show. Congratulations to all members who got birds away to the Zone Selection in Mackay and also to those that then qualified for the Nationals in Brisbane. Thanks to those members that travelled to Mackay and helped out with preparing our team for the Zone Selection and helping us win the Brian West Trophy for another year.

Special congratulations need to go to the O'Callaghan Family for their first and second placings in the Australian White Cap Class at the Nationals. As this was the first time that this Variety has been shown at the National level, it was only fitting that the FIRST National winner should be Kev after all the hard work he has invested into this exciting variety over a good few number of years to not only have them recognised but to improve them to such a high standard. I'm sure everyone who witnessed the judging of this class would agree with me when I say that Kev's two birds were a class above the other birds in the class.

Congratulations must also go to John Guinane for his second placing with his fabulous Clearbody. Congratulations also to Terry and Marilyn Benbow on their second placing in the Australian Golden Faced class. Although representing South Queensland they are also members of our club.

Our Auction held on the 9th June was also a huge success for us. And didn't we have some cracker birds entered from our invited breeders. This auction, if not the best in Queensland would not be far from being so. Congratulations to Darrel Fisher for winning the Club Bird Raffle with the winnings to be spent at our annual auction. A huge thank you JJ's Pet Supplies for the donation of a basket of bird products valued at $250 for the raffle held during auction. Please support them.

Our next event is our Lawn Show at the Mount Larcom showgrounds on Saturday the 6th July at 1:00 pm. Our July meeting will also be held at this time. See you all there, and please bring a plate for afternoon tea. There is also a couple of articles and show results included which I hope everyone finds interesting and of some use.

Cheers,
Russell Ogden

The following article is based on presentations that John Carter has made, on behalf of the Pied Budgerigar Society of Australasia (PBS), to Branches of the Budgerigar Society of New South Wales. John is a long time supporter of the pied varieties in general. He is a member of both the BSNSW's St- George Branch, is currently the Secretary of the PBS and is a BS NSW judge.

Mainly Dark Eyed Clears

But also, Dutch Dominant Pies, Continental Clearflights and Recessive Pies.

Dark Eyed Clears (DECs) are on the come back in Australia - mainly due to the ANBC recognizing them in the Budgerigar Standard, albeit currently only in the Any Other Standard Variety, along with Saddlebacks' Suffused Yellows/Whites and Darkwings. This has meant that since the 1st January 2004, there is now a standard for these beautiful birds, and we are seeing many more on the bench - most annual shows in New South Wales will have at least a couple of DECs in their show, and in fact more than 20 dark eyed clears were exhibited in a recent show of the Pied Budgerigar society (PBs). It is rewarding to note that the number of fanciers that are breeding these beautiful birds is growing. The PBS has encouraged breeders of Dark Eyed Clears to make their surplus DECs available to other clubs through auctions and, preferably, by donations to leading breeders of recessive piers and in fact a yellow and a white DEC were recently donated by the PBS to the Budgerigar Society of Tasmania' They were placed on show at the recent Australian National Budgerigar Championships in Tasmania in their AOSV exhibition class. These DECs are currently being bred with some very good quality recessive piers and hopefully the Tasmanians will soon be exhibiting some quality DECs. It is pleasing to note that some Branches of the Budgerigar Society of New South Wales (BSNSW) and some specialist societies are setting up classes for Dark Eyed Clears, outside of the Any Other Standard Variety class, and this has contributed, even more, to the current, albeit still limited, success of this variety' As a youngster I can remember seeing some DECs in England, in the late 1950s, and even at that tender age being interested in their unusual genetic make-up. Regrettably, I did not have the opportunity of keeping any until I took up breeding (and showing) birds in Australia. when Dave Cook from Queensland gave me a Dark Eyed Clear cock and a Dutch Dominant Pied cock'

Assessment of Stock

By Geoff Lowe

Before you Start assessing your birds each year, check what your goals were for the previous year and stick rigidly to them. If you have a long term breeding plan for your birds, don't let your mind-wander from it during the course of your assessment, it is easy to let this happen if you find you are a little disappointed with some of your results. Keep a note pad with you at all times to record your own thoughts on specific birds'

You should start assessing your young birds after your breeding season ends' with any very poor quality birds sold off. Constantly study the quality of your birds as they mature, and you will hopefully see both cocks and hens that show the desirable qualities you that you had worked so hard to achieve.

The main assessment should occur soon after the major moult, with every bird being put in a show cage and left to settle to show its true potential.

Look for birds that relate to the Standard for size, deportment, wing carriage' head quality, wing markings, colour, spots, etc., and always have the current Standard to refer to, if necessary.

Your "Breeding Records" should be studied very carefully at this time, to see which lines have given you the results you were hoping for.

If you want to make comparisons, a good idea is to put the parents in a show cage with their offspring and evaluate them against one another, to if the youngsters are better than the cock or hen or both. This can be a guide to which is the stronger parent if you are thinking of pairing one or both of them again.

Check through the culled birds, as there may be some birds slip past you, who were not showing their best during culling, and put them in a cage again. If a particular bird is catching your eye in the flight, but won't steady in the show cage' put it in with an older bird that you know is a good show bird, this will sometimes do the trick.

If, while assessing your birds, you believe you have slipped back, then you have to decide what went wrong. In a case a case such as this, seek the assistance of an experienced member in your Club and between the two of you, you should be able to arrive at the cause of the problem. Two heads are sometimes better than one in this type of situation' but make sure you advise your helper what you were trying to achieve to end up with the result you have. Have an enquiring mind, don't be frightened to ask questions, they are your birds. By doing this, you learn the basics, and eventually will be able do the job yourself. Better to be sure than sorry later. Always keep more hens than cocks, a 2 to 1 ratio is a good formula to adhere to. The cocks can then be used to gain the maximum advantage from your breeding programme.

When you have determined what you are going to keep, you can then continue with your long term breeding plan, carefully mapping your mating's for the coming breeding season'
